Congratulatory message to the Alice and Eleonore Schoenfeld International String Competition for Violin and Cello

I would like to express my heartfelt appreciation to the organisers of the Alice and Eleonore Schoenfeld International String Competition for Violin and Cello for instituting this award, thereby encouraging gifted young musicians from around the world in their quest for excellence. The staging of the very first edition of this important music competition in Hong Kong will no doubt enrich the cultural fabric of the city. I am sure that working towards this prestigious prize has enhanced the skills and repertoire of all those who participated.

Sharing a similar vision, Hong Kong Baptist University has been sparing no effort in developing musical talent on and off campus and promoting music in the community at large. Our Department of Music has demonstrated great passion and dedication not only in providing quality music education, but also in conveying the beauty and harmony of music through regular musical events that are open to the public. Such initiatives are in line with the University's commitment to upholding the ethos of Whole Person Education and dedicating its utmost effort to nurture the all-round development of students.

I would like to extend my heartiest congratulations to the winners, who will certainly benefit greatly from the exposure generated from winning this prestigious accolade. I wish them every success in their future endeavours and hope that the Competition goes from strength to strength each successive year and continues to attract and motivate young musicians of the highest calibre.
